

Panel To Salvage School Bill

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A House subcommittee was set for a last ditch effort today to salvage an embattled bill designed to equalize state aid to education on the basis of local property tax effort.

"There is still hope for a bill with bipartisan support," Rep. Ben Rose, R-64 Lima, insisted Tuesday even as full committee hearings broke down.

Majority Democrats retreated behind closed doors to try to hammer out a compromise, but Finance Chairman Myrl H. Shoemaker, D-88 Bourneville, conceded: "There was a lack of agreement in the Democratic caucus about certain aspects of the bill."

Consequently, House Speaker Vernal G. Riffe Jr., D-89 New Boston, and Shoemaker ordered it sent to subcommittee—not as a death knell, but probably for a final attempt to fashion a plan that can win acceptance on the House floor.

"I'd like to have it on the House floor next week," Riffe said.

Shoemaker abruptly canceled an afternoon session of the full committee in the midst of a new proposal for continuation of Ohio's parochial aid program, overturned last May by a U.S. Supreme Court ruling.

David Young, a Columbus attorney representing the Catholic Conference of Ohio, said the court ruling would not be violated if state aid were provided as a "loan," rather than a direct subsidy.

The state budget approved by Gov. James A. Rhodes contains $68 million for parochial, which Ohio instituted in 1967 to pay for some textbooks and auxiliary services such as remedial courses and guidance.

Shoemaker said the parochial proposal will be on the subcommittee agenda, but legislators will concentrate on the equal yield formula which is opposed by several powerful lobbying groups.

The complicated plan sailed through the Senate last May on a 26-6 vote, but objections from big city districts, realtors, farm groups and business interests have succeeded in stalling it in the House.

The lobbyists have succeeded in killing a provision that would have ended property tax rollbacks in reapportioned counties in years when the Board of Tax Appeals updates and increases property valuations.

Millage rollbacks of this sort would theoretically play havoc with a formula which basis state aid on local tax property effort. Under the formula, equal local tax effort would yield an equal return of state and local dollars combined per pupil.

A compromise, worked out by Rose and Rep. Larry Christman, D-67 Englewood, will face scrutiny in the eight-member subcommittee, Shoemaker said.

The Rose-Christman plan would attempt to answer rollback problems and big city squawks for more money by increasing formula funding during the second year of the phase-in.

The equal yield concept calls for a six-year phase-in, moving toward raising the state level of support for public schools to 50 per cent. The present state-aid level is just over 40 per cent.

Iron Workers' Strike Halts Sewage Project

By DAVE AMEY
Herald City Editor

Picketing members of the Iron Workers Local Union 172 of Columbus halted all construction at the site of Circleville's proposed sewage treatment plant Tuesday morning, and other construction projects in the Central Ohio area.

Picket lines were hastily formed in protest of a "lack of meaningful negotiations" with the Association of General Contractors of Central Ohio, a union spokesman said Tuesday afternoon.

The 600-member union decided to picket after a Monday meeting, which was called to seal a tentative agreement that would have halted their five-week general strike.

However, negotiations for a wage increase and contract period "have broken," the spokesman said.

The strike curtailed construction at the sewage treatment plant since it first began June 11, according to resident engineer Bob Blank. But some of the work, primarily fill operations, was able to continue until the picket lines were formed.

Other trades affected at the plant are carpenters, laborers, cement finishers, and truck drivers. About 50 workers are out of a job as a result of the strike, he said.

It now seems certain that the project will not meet its original completion date of June 26, 1976. Besides the strike, the plant has been crippled by a flood earlier in the year.

The Charles H. Shook Co., general contractors, are attempting to revise their estimated completion schedule, Blank said.

Two major points in the contract dispute concern wage increases and the length of the contract.

Iron Workers claim they have successfully negotiated for raises totaling 45 cents an hour in the last two years. They are now seeking an 82 cent an hour rate hike.

Workers are also seeking a two-year contract, as opposed to the three-year contract offered by the association.

Another unstable point is the workers' Health, Welfare, and Pension Plan, which the association will not fund.

The union spokesman said the plan has, for 20 years, been a matter of pride with the workers.

There is no indication when the strike will end, the spokesman said. The workers have no supplemental income plan to rely upon during the strike, he said.

The AGC estimates that 7,500 construction workers in a 26-county Central Ohio area are out of work as a result of the picket lines. About $100 million worth of construction projects in downtown Columbus have been closed.

Former Berger Hospital Administrator Dies

Charles B. Beard, 76, administrator of Berger Hospital in the late 1960s, died Monday at Riverside Hospital, Columbus.

CHARLES B. BEARD

Beard, a native of Columbus, lived at 455 Clinton Heights Ave., in the Clintonville section of the city.

Beard assumed his duties here April 15, 1966, in a second attempt by the hospital's Board of Governors to find a successor to Miss Ellen Leist, who resigned.

Gerard B. Fournier of St. Albans, Vt., was hired earlier in the year for the position, but later changed his decision.

Beard retired from his position in May, 1967, 14-months later, after completing his obligation to the Board of Governors to "get the hospital on its way to accreditation."

Under his administration, the hospital completed 31 of a list of 36 items needed for accreditation, including the hiring of a registered anesthesiologist, acquisition of dietary equipment, improved parking, public relations program, improved housekeeping, and a salary schedule improvement.

Berger Hospital, founded in 1928, was accredited in 1971 by the American Hospital Association Joint Commission on Accreditation.

Beard was succeeded by James Stambaugh.

Before his retirement, Beard was administrator of Mercy Hospital, Columbus, from 1952 to 1964, and had previously been assistant superintendent and personnel director at Benjamin Franklin Hospital. Earlier he was acting superintendent of the old White Cross Hospital in Columbus.

He is survived by his wife, Edith; a brother, James of Columbus; two nieces, and several cousins.

The funeral service was held today at Rutherford Chapel, Columbus, with the Rev. Dr. E. Edge Dixon officiating. Burial was at Union Cemetery.

Court Reverses Firearms Ruling

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The Indiana Court of Appeals has reversed a firearms conviction, citing the Marion County prosecutor for improper plea bargaining practices.

The court Tuesday overturned the 1972 conviction of Eddie L. Spalding, Indianapolis, in Marion Criminal Court 4. He was sentenced to eight years in prison.

Judge George B. Hoffman Jr. wrote in the majority opinion it was "clearly improper for the prosecutor to invade the discretion of the trial court by effectively determining the minimum sentence a defendant must serve."

Problem Hits Apollo

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — America's Apollo, on its last proud mission of history and diplomacy, ran into an irritating mechanical problem today in its race through space to hook up for a cosmic visit with the Soviet spaceship Soyuz.

If not solved, the problem — a jammed probe — could block the American and Soviet astronauts from crawling from ship to ship. But ground controllers said it should be easy to overcome.

They said the problem endangered neither the American astronauts nor the basic purpose of the joint flight — docking and visiting in space.

A Russian official said he could not believe the problem would not be solved.

Both craft sped from earth Tuesday in launches of the two spacefaring nations that had been independent competitors until this mission and are now ready for the first time to join ships and hands in space.

U.S. astronauts Thomas P. Stafford, Vance D. Brand and Donald K. Slayton rode the Apollo in orbital pursuit of the Soviet ship manned by cosmonauts Alexei Leonov and Valeri Kubasov.

It was the last voyage of an Apollo spacecraft. America's next manned space venture will be a shuttle flight to be launched four years from now.

If the probe problem is licked and all else — including the merging of orbits — goes as planned, Apollo will overtake Soyuz at midday Thursday and the astronauts and cosmonauts will execute a tricky linkup.

The problem boils down to this:

The Apollo carries with it a tubular module which is to join with the Soyuz. This module is to form an air-sealed passage between the two craft.

Jutting from the nose of the Apollo is a probe which links the command vehicle to the docking module. But the probe jammed when the astronauts tried to remove it to clear the tunnel.

Mission control officials in Houston said the probe could easily be cleared, using simple hand tools.

"I think they will probably get it out pretty quickly," flight controller Neil Hutchinson said. He explained that the astronauts could get at it by removing a single screw.

Meanwhile, the astronauts were told to sleep and rest up for today's unscheduled work.

Egypt Wants U.N. Pressure On Israel

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Egypt is demanding new Security Council pressure for an Israeli withdrawal as its price for allowing the United Nations Emergency Force in the Sinai Desert to continue acting as a buffer between Israeli and Egyptian troops.

Egypt informed U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim on Tuesday that it would not agree to renewal of the force's mandate when, it expires July 24.

Waldheim, after a conference with Egyptian Ambassador A. E. Abdel Meguid, said Egypt expects the Security Council to adopt a resolution "which will help to implement the previous decisions of the Council."

These called for Israeli withdrawal from Arab territories it occupied in the 1967 Arab-Israeli war and an end to the Arab state of war against Israel.

Security Council President Alberto Cavaglieri planned to consult with other members, and a council meeting was expected in a few days.

"It is a serious situation, a dangerous situation," Waldheim told newsmen. But he said it could not be compared with "what we had in 1967," when Secretary-General U Thant withdrew another U.N. buffer force on Egypt's demand and war followed.

The secretary-general said the 4,200-man buffer force could not remain in Sinai unless both Egypt and Israel consented.

for the Soviet control center, Viktor Blagov, told a news conference: "I believe this problem will be solved. I can't believe we won't solve it."

Before discovering the stuck probe, the astronauts had fixed a minor problem involving a clogged urine disposal system.

The astronauts fired the powerful service propulsion engine on the Apollo craft twice Tuesday night in the first of a series of maneuvers to adjust their orbit for the rendezvous.

"Sort of like being bumped by a truck," said Brand of the initial burn of less than a second.

After docking, the spacemen will open both ends of the airlock tunnel connecting the vehicles. Stafford and Leonov will embrace in a heralded "handshake in the sky."

The Americans carried the docking module into space Tuesday and extracted it from the spent booster rocket without difficulty.

For two days, astronauts and cosmonauts will visit the others' space quarters, sharing their food and conducting scientific and medical experiments. They will also exchange gifts, flags and letters from leaders of the two nations.

For the first time since Russia got the jump on America in space with the launching of Sputnik in 1957, the two nations were linked in cooperation scientifically and in a cosmic display of detente.

Today's timetable called for the Soyuz cosmonauts to maneuver their capsule to a 140-mile-high orbit and the Apollo crew to check out the docking module systems.

A test of the Soyuz television link with Apollo mission control also was scheduled.

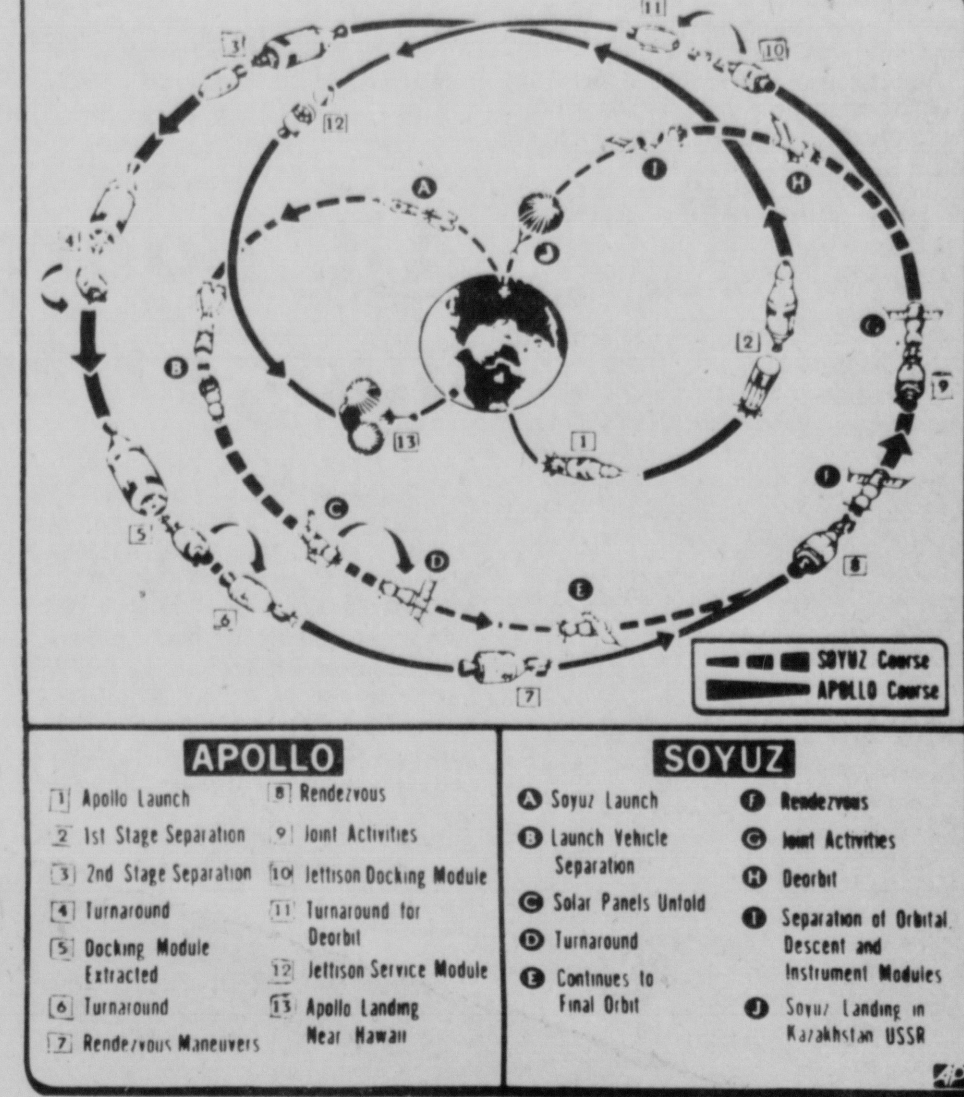

The tiny capsules were rocketed flawlessly into orbit Tuesday from spaceports half a world apart.

The Apollo launch followed the Soviet blastoff by seven and a half hours and matched it for perfection.

Television viewers around the world witnessed the twin launches, for the first time seeing live the blastoff of a Soviet spaceship.

Council Fails To Meet Statutory Budget Deadline

With only five members present Tuesday, Circleville City Council could not muster enough votes to pass new legislation by suspending the rules and thus failed to meet the July 15 deadline for approving the statutory budget for 1976.

The city is required by state statute to approve an estimated budget for the next year and present it to the county auditor and county budget commission for approval.

The failure to have the budget approved by the deadline could place the city in an awkward financial situation according to David Goldschmidt, chairman of council's finance committee.

A public hearing was held on the budget and Mayor Frank Barnhill requested a special meeting of council be called as soon as the two absent councilmen, John Jenkins and Tom Wells, returned to the city. Both were out of town yesterday and unable to attend the meeting.

In addition to the budget, Councilman David Crawford requested other legislation which council was unable to pass Tuesday be considered.

This included resolutions to improve East High Street between Pickaway Street and Stella Avenue and the improvement of Atwater Avenue between Wilson Avenue and Morris Road by the construction of curbs and gutters.

The cost of the improvement is to be assessed the property owners. Councilman Crawford noted the summer season is quickly passing and the service director needed the legislation approved so work could be started on the two projects.

Four ordinances authorizing the transfer of funds in order to pay bills incurred by various departments of city government were read for the first time and held for a second reading.

They included the transfer of $806.98 from the municipal court capital improvement fund to the equipment account within the fund to pay for a typewriter and an automatic time stamping device purchased by Judge Sterling Lamb; the transfer of $1,300 from the capital improvement fund of the fire department to the equipment account to purchase a used car for the use of the fire chief; $500 from the general fund to the police department maintenance of equipment account to pay for general maintenance; and the transfer of $500 from the fire department building demolition account to the maintenance of equipment account to pay for general maintenance.

Councilman Goldschmidt warned his fellow council members the general fund was getting dangerously low and that all department heads in the city should be warned to "live within their budgets."

An ordinance to rezone .775 acre of land at the corner of the Lancaster Pike and Pontius Lane from a multiple family residence district to a general business district was read and held for a second reading before council.

The request to rezone the property was made by owner James Ford who wants to construct a building for the used car lot he operates there. The business is presently a "non-conforming use" of the property that was established before the area was zoned. Ford had earlier requested a building permit to construct the building and indicated he intended to demolish an old barn now used. He was informed the permit could not be issued unless the land were rezoned. The request was approved by the city's planning and zoning commission following public hearings and a hearing was held July 1 by city council.

The only legislation that could be officially approved by council last

The children stirred the apples in the 30-gallon copper kettle while their mothers were busy making apple sauce.

Altogether, they made about 40 quarts of applesauce and 50 quarts of apple butter. The recipe for the apple butter is: 25 gallons of apples, peeled and cored; 80 cups of sugar, a pound of cinnamon and 10 cups of apple cider vinegar. Cook slowly over an open wood fire in the shade of an apple tree, stirring constantly for three to four hours.

Markets

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market pushed ahead today, continuing to respond to evidence of an improving economy.

The opening Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up a fraction from the new 1975 closing high it reached on Tuesday, and gainers outpaced losers by a 2-1 margin on the New York Stock Exchange.

Late Tuesday, the Federal Reserve Board reported that industrial production increased in June for the first time in nine months.

The news was taken as one of the strongest signs to date that the economy was starting a rebound from the recession.

Merrill Lynch, which reported record second quarter earnings Tuesday, was up $\frac{3}{8}$ at 20 $\frac{1}{2}$.

On Tuesday the Dow Jones industrial average gained 5.95 to 881.81, its highest close in more than 15 months.

Nixon Won't Move East

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — Richard M. Nixon has no plans to leave Southern California and reports to the contrary are "completely false," says an aide to the former President.

Col. Jack Brennan commented Tuesday on a report by U.S. News & World Report that Nixon associates said he was considering moving to the New York City area. Brennan said there are no such plans.

The magazine said Nixon contemplated going into business with Robert H. Abplanalp, an aerosol can magnate and longtime friend. A spokesman for Abplanalp has denied the report.

At the end of May, the Los Angeles Times reported that advisers had urged Nixon to move to New York to establish a base of operations more accessible to world and national leaders. It said he had reached no decision whether to sell his property overlooking the Pacific.

Council Fails...

night was the ordinance up for a third reading for the installation of street lights in the Garden City area.

Prior to the passage of the ordinance, council received two objections to the type of poles that were to be used. Leo J. Hall, a resident of the area, in a letter to council asked that his name be withdrawn from a petition which had earlier been presented. His reason for the request was not an objection to the lighting but to the wooden poles and overhead electric lines that are to be used. The Rev. David Frazer, also a resident of the area, objected for the same reason.

Council president Joseph Bell said the Garden City area historically has been a target of vandalism and burglary and expressed the opinion this was due in part to the lack of adequate street lighting. When the subdivision was first developed, the residents and developers requested no street lighting be installed. Instead, gas lights were placed in front of each home. For several years these lights were maintained by the gas company, a policy that was discontinued about three years ago. Now, only about half of the gas lights are operable.

COUNCIL BRIEFS

Council rules require that ordinances be read in their entirety at three meetings. Following the third reading, the proposed legislation may be either approved or disapproved. However, with six of the seven members assenting, the rules may be suspended and the ordinance passed after the first or second reading.

It has become common practice for council to act on routine matters under a suspension of the rules. Usually only legislation which members feel requires further study or on which they would like to feel out the reaction of the public is held for second and third readings.

Safety Director Ed Ebert held an informal "open house", without refreshments, of Engine House No. 2, the former Shell Service Station on Main Street west of the Norfolk and Western Railroad. The site was recently purchased by the city for use as a fire station.

The city fire department will house a pumper, a mini-pumper to be purchased by Circleville Twp. trustees and the Emergency Medical Vehicle at the station. Some remodeling will be required but Ebert believes $6,000 would be sufficient to cover the costs.

Specifications for the mini-pumper have been prepared by Fire Chief Mike Brown and the city solicitor John Adkins and County Prosecutor Richard Gerhardt are preparing the proper bidding legislation.

Fire Station No. 2 will provide the area city south and west of the Norfolk and Western Railroad with fire protection should a train ever block all crossings. It will also improve the service to the township.

Mayor Frank Barnhill reminded council the city plans to hold an auction 10 a.m. Aug. 9 at the Water Department Lot, corner of Pickaway and Ohio Streets. The service department will have some equipment to sell, the police department some unclaimed bicycles and other articles and there will also be some general surplus equipment.

Present at last night's meeting were council members Goldschmidt, Crawford, Ben Gordon, Harold Hoffman, and Dixie Watters, president of council Joseph Bell, city solicitor John Adkins, Mayor Barnhill, safety director Ed Ebert, Service Director Atwood Jones and fire chief Mike Brown.

In 1918, Russia's Czar Nicholas II, his empress and their five children were executed by the Bolsheviks.

30-DAY WEATHER OUTLOOK—This is the 30-day weather outlook, in terms of temperature and precipitation, according to the National Weather Service.

Man Escapes From City Life To Find Terror In Tiny Town

KEYES, Calif. (AP) — Oliver Green and family moved here last fall to escape the "bother and commotion" of big city life. Now he says he keeps two loaded guns by his bed as protection after being insulted on the street and menaced by speeding cars.

"... I got called Nigger, you know. Cars rushed back close to me," Green says.

"I still don't believe this stuff really happened," Green, 47, said in an interview. "None of it makes sense. Sure has changed my image of this town, though."

Green said an attempted fire-bombing of his house — the firebomb failed to explode — was the most violent in a series of attacks that have prompted him to keep a .22-caliber rifle and a double-barrel shotgun at his bedside. He says his house also has been hit by two suspicious fires, and one of them caused heavy damage.

He first thought the fires were accidental, but now he believes they were set, he adds.

Green had picked a $19,000 rundown house on an acre of land from a farm catalogue and moved his teen-aged son, his daughter, and her 3-year-old son to this San Joaquin Valley town of 1,500 persons about 150 miles southeast of Oakland. Green is divorced.

His problems come on the heels of an announcement by a state agency that it will investigate alleged racial discrimination against blacks in two other California towns — Taft in oil rich southern San Joaquin Valley and scenic Carmel on the coast.

Thirteen black junior college athletes were driven out of Taft in May and a citizens petition and zoning regulations combined to force eight black high school students out of their Carmel residence last month.

Green says his image of Keyes was one of quiet, fresh air, and "green fields and open spaces" when he decided a year ago he'd had enough of bustling Oakland, where he ran a home-building firm.

Some of the local residents say the town isn't to blame for Green's troubles.

"There are a lot of good people in this town," said Beverly Smith, wife of a Baptist minister and herself a newcomer. "We don't like what's happened and we don't think it represents more than a real small minority."

Stanislaus County Sheriff's Detective Ron Adams said, "We have a lot of trouble with burglaries and fights over there in Keyes. That's a rough place, a lot of them are from Oklahoma, and Arkansas, and Texas, that sort. I'd guess Mr. Green picked a tough place to live and a few of the local kids got ugly." No arrests have been made.

Solar Heating Is On The Rise

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Recent studies made for the National Science Foundation indicate that solar heating and cooling systems can become competitive in most regions of the nation in 10 to 15 years. The amount of fuel saved by using solar energy would rise slowly, reaching 50 million barrels of oil per year by 1990.

The government is setting policies for the growing use of solar energy devices expected by the mid-1980s.

Most of the emphasis would be on techniques of using the sun for single homes and buildings.

Woman, 74, Nixes Gunman

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Susannah Weisenbach, a 103-pound 74-year-old, routed a gunman Monday despite his threat to kill her.

"I screamed like a rooster for 15 minutes straight," Mrs. Weisenbach said.

She told police that a man and a woman came to her home and that the man held a pistol against her, saying, "I'm going to kill you if you don't keep your mouth shut."

She said her yells sent the woman scurrying away. The man tried to cover her mouth "but I kept right on screaming," she said.

Mrs. Weisenbach said that during the struggle, the gunman struck her with his pistol and "we wound up rolling on the floor."

"My glasses and earrings and wig fell off, but I kept hitting him," Mrs. Weisenbach said. "I wanted to bite him, but my dentures fell out."

She said her screaming and struggling clinched her defense and that the man finally fled.

Fair Trade Backers Face Fight

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Fair trade advocates are now in for a fight in the 111th General Assembly against legislation that would abolish Ohio's price maintenance laws dating back to the depression years.

Already this year, 10 states have done away with fair trade laws, and the Congress is considering bills to wipe out federal authorization for minimum price levels.

The Ohio House passed 75-43 last Thursday a bill by Rep. Michael P. Stinziano, D-30 Columbus, who thinks the laws are outdated, and that they force Ohioans to pay substantially more for products than in free trade states such as neighboring Michigan.

The House Judiciary Committee, which overwhelmingly approved Stinziano's bill to repeal Ohio's fair trade laws, heard witnesses put that cost at $50 to $75 million a year.

These witnesses told the panel that Ohioans pay 18 to 27 per cent more for television sets, audio equipment, lawn care products and hardware appliances, the most frequently fairtraded items.

Figures like that infuriate merchants who are clinging to the regulations by which manufacturers can establish and maintain minimum retail price levels.

A spokesman for a firm supplying fair trade products to 4,975 independent Ohio dealers told the committee "proponents of repeal would have you believe that this repeal will benefit the consumer by saving him or her money."

"Such savings are a delusion," said the spokesman, Arthur H. Berndtson of the Anderson Co. of Gary, Ind., makers of ANCO windshield wipers.

Berndtson said a figure of $1.5 billion in annual nationwide savings from fair trade repeal was unconfirmed.

"In fact," he said, "the $1.5 billion figure was used by an economics professor advocate in testimony before a U.S. Senate committee in 1959."

Berndtson said the professor conceded the figure was "nothing but educated estimates."

Consumer groups, discount stores,

Ohio's Atty. Gen. William J. Brown and President Gerald R. Ford favor repeal of fair trade laws, which still are on the books in 25 states.

Some manufacturers and many small businessmen oppose their abolition.

"Fair trade is not a product of the depression of the 1930s as proponents of repeal say," argued Berndtson. "Indeed, Ohio's original Fair Trade Act of 1936 was revised and reenacted in 1959. Are we to believe that the Ohio legislature in 1959, a time of post-war growth, was still depressionminded? I think not."

Supporters of Stinziano's repealer say Ohio's law is particularly harsh because it binds even retailers who don't want to participate to maintain manufacturers' minimum price levels. Merchants who sell designated products for lower prices can be taken to court by manufacturers.

Stinziano and other fair trade critics insist there is no documented evidence that small businessmen have suffered in states which have dropped the laws.

Messy Ginkgo

What good is a ginkgo? This question is often asked in Washington, D.C., when thousands of ginkgo trees (ginkgo biloba) imported from the Orient drop their messy, rancid-smelling fruits.

Washington residents have been heard to remark that the female ginkgo is a stinko. Ginkgos come in both genders, but the male does not offend by dropping fruits.

The question would not be asked in China or Japan,

Where Arson Is King

It looks like bombed-out Berlin in 1945. Rows of five-story flats open blackened mouths to the world, the roofs gone, walls sagging. Vietnam? No. South Bronx, New York. That is where arson is king.

Engine 82 responds to 9,000 alarms each year. Over 3,600 are false alarms. Whether there is a fire or not, the arrival of Engine 82 is always met by a barrage of bottles, boards and spikes from neighboring rooftops.

My interest in the blackened land was piqued by an article in "The Village Voice" written by Howard Blum. "It's like a ghost town up here now," Fire Captain Robert Farrell told Blum. "When I came here 10 years ago, this street was filled with buildings and people. Now there's nothing left but rocks."

Frank Doyle, an old friend who is public relations director for the New York Fire Department, states the somber figures: "5,500 fires in South Bronx set in the last 17 months." Fun City has been flamed out.

When Engine 82 responds to a false alarm, it keeps moving. Ten a day. The helmeted and booted men look for smoke. The bottles, bricks and boards cascade downward. The men yell to the driver, "For Christ sake keep going!"

The firehouse seems to be the only warm living thing within a half mile. Many of the burned-out shells are marked with a big chalky X. This means: "Dangerous to firemen. Do not enter."

"It's us versus the animals," a veteran of Vietnam says. "They can throw rocks or strip the truck clean and we can't do a thing. The natives around here are walking 10 feet tall because the city won't let us hit back."

The city is Mayor Abe Beame. The match kings of the South Bronx represent bloc voting. Few arrests are made. The smell of gasoline permeates the old toasters. Cops are busy busting numbers runners and bookies. They shrug off 5,000 fires in one small area. "It ain't kids," one tells me. "It's done by family men. There's a profit in fire."

Men rip off the radiators in buildings. Frightened residents—mostly unemployed Puerto Ricans—move out. The vandals tear out the fake marble stairs and sell them. They can't get at the piping and plumbing in the walls, so they distribute gasoline up and down five stories.

They buy it in gallon cans. The men in filling stations know when there is going to be a fire before the firemen. It requires skill to make a huge flue of an empty stairwell.

A man with a gasoline-soaked rag and a book of matches dogtrotts in the two feet of litter behind the flat. He lights the rag and tosses it inside. Then he sits on a stoop with a jug of wine, waiting and watching.

He watches the ruddy light glow from within the building. The young men arm themselves with boards and stones and go to the rooftops of other buildings. They wait. The sirens start low and complaining. They shriek when they turn on Seabury Avenue.

The flat is a roaring furnace. Fearful firemen get off the engines and look up into the darkness for a flying object which would mean a fractured skull or a broken arm. One says, "The animals are juiced up tonight."

When the fire is out, the exhausted fighters rip the walls with axes, looking for pockets of smoke. They do all the work for the men who want to dismantle and sell the piping. They hide behind anonymity, but a defender says, "Look, we too have to eat."

NEW YORK (AP) — Some of our favorite assumptions and most relied upon alibis about prices and personal finances are being challenged.

Now the Federal Trade Commission explodes another alibi, that the big food chains were profiteering, raising their prices not because their costs were going up but just because they were greedy for profits.

The FTC agreed that markups by the food chains did increase, but concluded: "The very rapid retail food-price increases since 1972 are explained primarily by increases in prices of raw food products."

The villains are being challenged, and some are falling. One favorite villain was industrial concentration. In industries dominated by a relatively few companies, it was said, prices were administered, or kept high.

When inflation worsened during the past few years this villain assumed monumental proportions, as it does from time to time. Replete with political overtones, it became the favorite alibi for many people.

The Council on Wage and Price Stability decided to look into the ac-

"For most of the past 20 years, average Bureau of Labor Statistics wholesale prices in the concentrated industries have risen less rapidly than prices in unconcentrated industries."

One study does not necessarily destroy a villain, but this particular one not only exonerates the concentrated industries, it also, by inference, hands them a bit of praise.

DETROIT (AP) — U.S. car sales for the first 10 days in July were down 9 per cent from the same period last year, industry analysts say.

Analysts estimate that sales for July 1-10 totaled about 160,000 compared with 175,786 for the first 10 days of the month in 1974.

However, sales for the period were up 2 per cent over the first 10 days of June this year, the analysts reported.

The nation's automakers release their sales figures for the latest 10-day period today.

"Normally, July 1-10 sales are down 8 per cent from June 1-10, but this time there is a slight increase indicating a further strengthening of the auto industry," one company analyst said.

Analysts expect July sales to approximate the rate of deliveries in 1971, making this period the lowest in four years. Earlier this year sales ran at a 14-year low, yet another indication the worst sales slump for the industry since World War II is slowly ending.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey says he will enter no presidential primaries next year and won't court delegates at state conventions. But he says he will say "yes" if a deadlocked Democratic Party looks his way.

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

I know I'm a very tense person. This may account for my fears. Every once in a while I get a fluttering sensation in my heart. When this happens I'm petrified.

I am 39 and I live in terror that I will soon have a heart attack.

Mr. T. E., Ohio

Dear Mr. E.:

The obvious answer to your problem is my own question of why you have not sought the advice of your doctor. By avoiding this, you are unnecessarily terrified and debilitated by what probably is an insignificant condition.

By avoiding such a visit and a complete examination you are allowing time to magnify your fears to the point where your personal happiness and productivity may be affected.

The heart has a delicate mechanism that acts like an electric switch to keep the heart rate regular. When special demands are made on the heart to beat faster during physical activity or times of emotional distress, the heart beat suddenly increases.

This regulatory mechanism in the heart can be disturbed by emotional tension, alcohol, caffeine, drugs and tobacco. The result is that the heart may skip a beat and cause the fluttering sensation you describe.

These extra beats, or extra "systoles," commonly occur and do not suggest a possibility of heart disease or impending heart trouble.

Nevertheless, a complete heart examination with electrocardiograms should be done. They undoubtedly will be normal and the contribution to your peace of mind will be enormous.

Far too many people of all ages live in a constant state of terror about the diseases they think they have.

Contrary to all the health education programs, these people actually avoid going to their doctors for fear of expressing the problems that have originated in their minds.

How many people have you known who, when they hear of the symptoms of another person's disease, are certain that they, too, have the same condition?

Symptoms of different diseases are often so closely allied that it is impossible for the untrained person to understand their meanings.

To be liberated from fears of disease it is necessary to openly discuss all problems early, with doctors. If the psychological root of these fears is deep, it is often beneficial to seek the help through your doctor, or a psychologist or psychiatrist.

A Toledo couple were jailed after a chase through Circleville which aroused nearly the entire southend of the city during the night. Deputies noticed the car being driven recklessly by the man and began to give chase.

In the minutes that followed things really became hectic as the Toledo driver made several attempts to wreck the sheriff's cruiser. Two large jugs of whiskey were thrown from the elusive auto and landed in the street. After finally stopping the fleeing vehicle and placing the couple under arrest, deputies went back to the street where the whiskey jugs had been thrown in an attempt to obtain evidence against the couple. They finally located one of the jugs but it had smashed and the whiskey had run into the gutter. The deputies used a cup and scooped enough of the powerful liquid to use as evidence.

The city of Circleville was sweltering in the hottest weather in the state according to official reports. The temperature soared to an unbelievable high of 109 degrees and was expected to hit 112 the next day.

The intense heat had citizens worried about the city water supply but Harry B. Denman, manager of the local water service, reported the water supply was good. Although Darby Creek was at a lower level than it had been in anyone's memory, the waterworks received an adequate supply.

Messy Ginkgo

What good is a ginkgo? This question is often asked in Washington, D.C., when thousands of ginkgo trees (ginkgo biloba) imported from the Orient drop their messy, rancid-smelling fruits.

Washington residents have been heard to remark that the female ginkgo is a stinko. Ginkgos come in both genders, but the male does not offend by dropping fruits.

The question would not be asked in China or Japan,

The nation's automakers release their sales figures for the latest 10-day period today.

"Normally, July 1-10 sales are down 8 per cent from June 1-10, but this time there is a slight increase indicating a further strengthening of the auto industry," one company analyst said.

Analysts expect July sales to approximate the rate of deliveries in 1971, making this period the lowest in four years. Earlier this year sales ran at a 14-year low, yet another indication the worst sales slump for the industry since World War II is slowly ending.

Humphrey Says He's Not Running

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey says he will enter no presidential primaries next year and won't court delegates at state conventions. But he says he will say "yes" if a deadlocked Democratic Party looks his way.

The Minnesota Democrat, 64, says he will file the necessary affidavits to keep his name off the ballot in states where all candidates are listed until they swear noncandidate status.

Despite his denials, little changed for the past year, Humphrey's name has repeatedly cropped up on political speculators' lists.

A Toledo couple were jailed after a chase through Circleville which aroused nearly the entire southend of the city during the night. Deputies noticed the car being driven recklessly by the man and began to give chase.

In the minutes that followed things really became hectic as the Toledo driver made several attempts to wreck the sheriff's cruiser. Two large jugs of whiskey were thrown from the elusive auto and landed in the street. After finally stopping the fleeing vehicle and placing the couple under arrest, deputies went back to the street where the whiskey jugs had been thrown in an attempt to obtain evidence against the couple. They finally located one of the jugs but it had smashed and the whiskey had run into the gutter. The deputies used a cup and scooped enough of the powerful liquid to use as evidence.

The city of Circleville was sweltering in the hottest weather in the state according to official reports. The temperature soared to an unbelievable high of 109 degrees and was expected to hit 112 the next day.

The intense heat had citizens worried about the city water supply but Harry B. Denman, manager of the local water service, reported the water supply was good. Although Darby Creek was at a lower level than it had been in anyone's memory, the waterworks received an adequate supply.

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

I know I'm a very tense person. This may account for my fears. Every once in a while I get a fluttering sensation in my heart. When this happens I'm petrified.

I am 39 and I live in terror that I will soon have a heart attack.

Mr. T. E., Ohio

Dear Mr. E.:

The obvious answer to your problem is my own question of why you have not sought the advice of your doctor. By avoiding this, you are unnecessarily terrified and devalued by what probably is an insignificant condition.

By avoiding such a visit and a complete examination you are allowing time to magnify your fears to the point where your personal happiness and productivity may be affected.

The heart has a delicate mechanism that acts like an electric switch to keep the heart rate regular. When special demands are made on the heart to beat faster during physical activity or times of emotional distress, the heart beat suddenly increases.

This regulatory mechanism in the heart can be disturbed by emotional tension, alcohol, caffeine, drugs and tobacco. The result is that the heart may skip a beat and cause the fluttering sensation you describe.

Youth Survives Attack By Bear

WHITE PINE, Mich. (AP) — "I felt right then like I could be snapped in two," said 16-year-old Paul Cameron.

"The bear came up and grabbed me by the throat with his jaws, lifted me about a foot off the ground and dropped me back."

Cameron is recovering today after a 15-minute bout with a black bear in Porcupine Mountain State Park.

The Dearborn High School student had been lying in his tent, disappointed because he hadn't seen any bears on a weekend camping trip.

Then he heard a bear growling and scratching at his pup tent.

"He was trying to knock the tent down. I was still in my sleeping bag. He started biting my arm through the tent and dragging me around inside the tent. I was playing dead and thought maybe it would go away, but he just kept biting at me — at my arm. I thought he broke my arm because I could hear the bones cracking."

Cameron said the bear finally knocked down the tent and he rolled out on the ground, and lay still, hoping the bear would leave.

Instead, he said, the bear attacked

These extra beats, or extra "systoles," commonly occur and do not suggest a possibility of heart disease or impending heart trouble.

Nevertheless, a complete heart examination with electrocardiograms should be done. They undoubtedly will be normal and the contribution to your peace of mind will be enormous.

Far too many people of all ages live in a constant state of terror about the diseases they think they have.

Contrary to all the health education programs, these people actually avoid going to their doctors for fear of expressing the problems that have originated in their minds.

How many people have you known who, when they hear of the symptoms of another person's disease, are certain that they, too, have the same condition?

Symptoms of different diseases are often so closely allied that it is impossible for the untrained person to understand their meanings.

To be liberated from fears of disease it is necessary to openly discuss all problems early, with doctors. If the psychological root of these fears is deep, it is often beneficial to seek the help through your doctor, or a psychologist or psychiatrist.

again.

"I was playing dead as long as I could but after he bit me in the throat and let me go I just ran," said Cameron.

He said he climbed a small tree but the bear came up after him.

"He came right up after me, almost to me, so I jumped to the next tree," the youth said.

"He went right down the trunk and came up the other one, then just stopped and went away. I started screaming for help."

A couple driving through the park saw the bear rummaging through Cameron's campsite and heard his screams. They helped him down and called park authorities.

Cameron was listed in good condition Monday.

Park Manager David Balbough said Monday that the bear, a female weighing about 125 pounds and about 2½ years old, was shot within an hour of the attack. The animal's head was sent to Lansing to check for rabies.

Balbough said it was the first attack in the 12 years he has been on the job. He said the bear may have been attracted by cooking odors from inside the tent, as the bear population has increased in the park and berries and other natural foods have been slow to ripen.

Kelley Says Family 1st

WASHINGTON (AP) — FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley says he will resign if he finds that family responsibilities are interfering with his work.

Since taking office two years ago, Kelley has returned to his home in Kansas City, Mo., almost every weekend to be with his wife, Ruby, who is undergoing treatment for cancer. Kelley normally returns to Kansas City on Thursday nights, works in the FBI office there on Fridays, and returns to Washington on Sunday nights, an agency spokesman said.

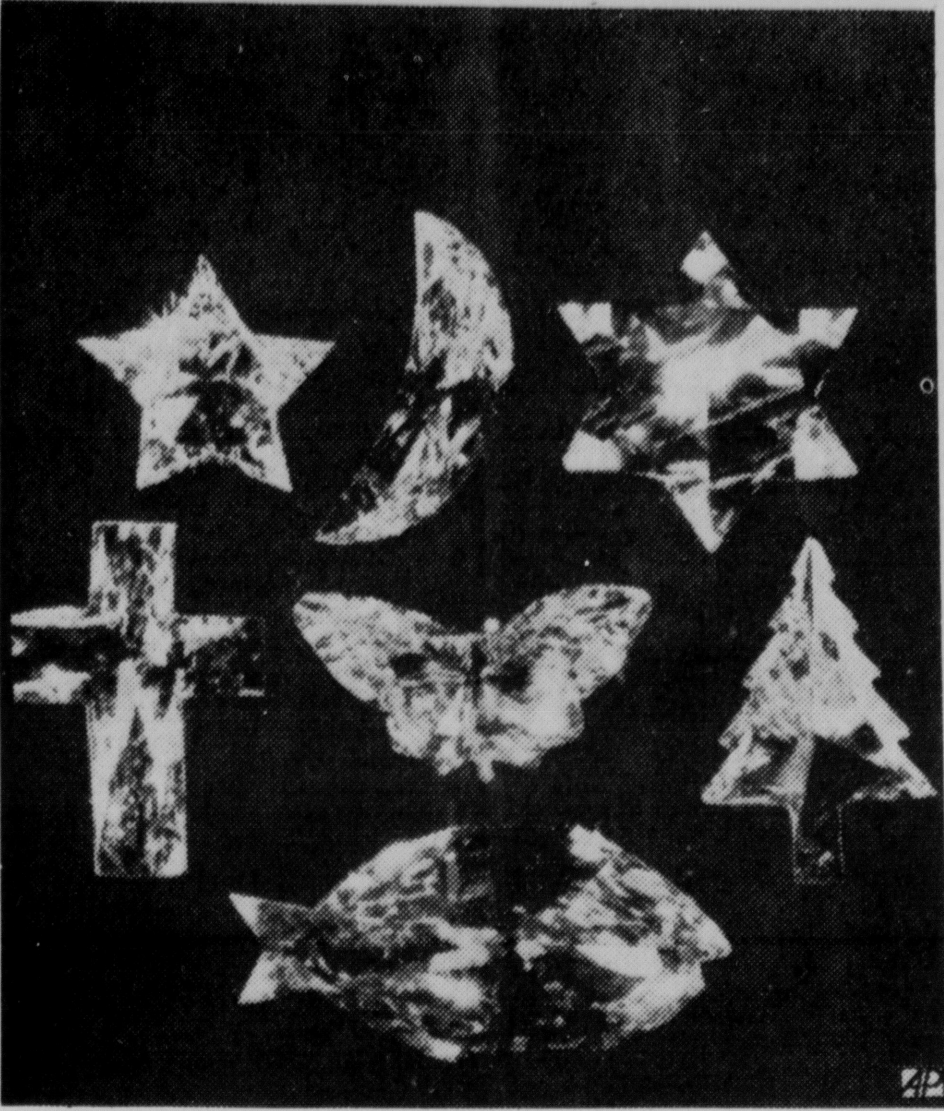

The director was asked at a news conference Monday whether his absences from FBI headquarters have threatened his control over the organization.

"I feel I have been able to maintain control," he replied. "I certainly am in constant touch. I am confident the executive staff of the bureau is behind me. If I feel it will endanger my administrative control and my capability of doing that which must be done, I will leave."

Hand Signal Proves No-No

BOSTON (AP) — When Peter Carr pulled out to pass New Hampshire Gov. Meldrim Thomson's car recently, he says he gave a hand signal that isn't found in any drivers' manual.

The governor filed a formal complaint with the New Hampshire Division of Motor Vehicles and the result is that Carr is barred from driving in the Granite State for 60 days, Carr says.

Carr, who lives in Hingham, Mass., said Monday that the incident occurred June 8 as he was driving down Interstate 93 and he pulled up behind a car he recognized as the governor's.

"When I got up to pass, the governor's driver put his right directional blinkers on, but he was blocking the left lane. He was acting like a policeman rather than a governor," Carr said.

Carr added he tailed the governor for about nine miles, driving toward the Massachusetts border. When he finally passed Thomson's car on the right, he gave the governor a personal hand signal.

Sen. Secrest Remarkable Solon

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—A Statehouse lobbyist was asked by his employer recently to describe state Sen. Robert T. Secrest, D-20 Cambridge.

"Well," said the lobbyist, "he's a good ole boy, been in Congress for many years and in the state Senate since 1969."

"No, I mean what's he really like?" asked the employer.

"Well, he chews tobacco, doesn't say too much and now and then he likes to take a drink," offered the lobbyist.

"I mean what's he REALLY like?" demanded the employer.

"Well, hell, he's meaner than a junkyard dog," the lobbyist replied.

That's one man's opinion of the 71-year-old Secrest, but it hardly does justice to the man's breadth of character.

Robert Thompson Secrest has been called the most underrated and generally unnoticed man in the Ohio Senate.

For someone who served 26 years in the Congress, seven years as a member of the Federal Trade Commission, a year on the staff of the late Adm. Chester W. Nimitz during World War II, and as state commerce director, that represents a considerable oversight.

A Republican who knows him well recently regaled a newsman with one story after another, all designed to indicate that Secrest not only has a lifetime grip on his eight-county southern Ohio district, but may be one of two or three best politicians in the Senate.

"When he dies, he'll have the biggest funeral in the history of the state," concluded the Republican. "He is simply the most beloved man in politics in southern Ohio."

A rambling 6-foot-plus with graying, slicked-down hair, a battered ruddy face and a prominent nose, Secrest is hardly handsome. His speech is spiced with homey, Dogpatch witticisms.

Few would guess that underneath the rough-hewn exterior lies an educated sophistication that surpasses some of his more voluble colleagues.

Secrest has a bachelor's degree in political science from Muskingum College, a law degree from the old Washington College of Law, now American University, and he has completed the necessary work for a master's degree in military government and international law at Columbia University.

When he is back in his Senate district, he packs a box of pungent 11-cent cigars and a pack of two of chewing tobacco into his car and drives for hours, hitting the bars in one town after another.

"He knows everybody in every bar," said Rep. Sam Speck, R-95 New Concord. "At every stop he downs a couple of beers, chats with the boys, and then is off to the next town and the next bar."

Secrest hasn't decided if he will run for reelection next year. If he doesn't the Senate will lose one of its more remarkable characters.

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM LANCE LITTEN

Bolin-Litten Vows Read In Pontious UM Church

The Rev. Liston Halley performed the double ring ceremony uniting in marriage Miss Betty Jean Bolin and Mr. William Lance Litten 4:30 p.m., June 21st, in Pontious United Methodist Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel (Bolin) Brungs, Route 5. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. John M. Litten, 350 Walnut Creek Pike.

The altar table was centered with an arrangement of spring flowers flanked with vases holding daisies, carnations and fern.

Mrs. Liston Halley, organist, presented a half-hour of nuptial selections preceding the ceremony.

The bride selected for her wedding a formal length A-line gown in a silhouette design of white organza. Chantilly lace accented the high collar on the fitted bodice with a sheer yoke. The lace swept down the front in panels and circled the hemline flowing gracefully to a chapel train. Matching lace cuffed the sheer full sleeves and formed the headpiece of petals trimmed with seed pearls holding the bouffant veil of bridal illusion. The bride carried a bouquet of pink carnations, white daisies and baby's breath.

Maid of honor, Miss Sandy Bolin, sister of the bride, wore a pink organza floor length gown in a high rise silhouette. Venise lace circled the high neckline and waist, formed ruffles at the cuffs and trailed around the hemline. She wore a corsage of carnations tied with spring colored ribbons.

Miss Karen Marie Litten sister of the bridegroom; Miss Pam Bolin and Miss Patricia Bolin, sisters of the bride, were bridesmaids. They were attired identically to the honor attendant in shades of blue, apricot and mint, respectively. They wore corsages of white carnations tied with spring colored ribbons.

Mr. John Litten served his son as best man. Ushers were Mr. Richard Martin, uncle of the bridegroom, and Mr. Robert Egnor.

The bride's mother wore a mint green dress and a corsage of green carnations tied with pastel colored ribbons. The bridegroom's mother chose a maize jersey ensemble in the A-line design with a short jacket collared in matching Venise lace. Her corsage was of yellow carnations tied with pastel ribbons.

A reception at the home of the bridegroom's parents followed the ceremony. The bride's table was centered with a three tiered wedding cake decorated with daisies. Hostesses were Mrs. Patty Ebert and Mrs. Shirley Armstrong.

The couple left for a wedding trip to the lodge at Shawnee State Park near Portsmouth. They now reside at 593 E. Main St. in Circleville.

The bride graduated in 1974 from Logan Elm High School and is employed at Amanda Bent and Bolt Co.

The bridegroom, a graduate of Circleville High School, is attending Ohio University in Athens.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding were from Dayton, Springfield, Flushing, Kingston, Nebraska, and Portsmouth.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

Widow Wants Neither

DEAR ABBY: I've been a widow for two years and have relocated to a completely different area where I have no close friends and no one to talk to about this.

I met a gentleman last year, and I like him very, very much. He wants to marry me, but I don't want to relinquish my freedom.

I do not want a legal tie with him for one reason. He is addicted to alcohol. He seems to handle it wisely, but I don't want to be his wife. Also, we are both in business and I need some time to myself. I enjoy his company enormously, however, and we are compatible in every way. I am 57 and he is 63.

I've considered suggesting to him the new "living together" arrangement so many younger people now find to their liking. He's pressuring me for an answer.

What do you say?

"57 AND HOLDING"

DEAR "57": Remain holding. Don't marry him feeling as you do. And don't suggest living together, either. Continue to see him as long as you enjoy

Salem Church Women Meet

The July meeting of Salem United Methodist Church Women was held recently at the church with Mrs. Richard Hildenbrand and Mrs. Darl McAfee as co-hostesses.

Mrs. Ralph Ankrom opened the meeting with prayer and used "Mary," the mother of Jesus, for devotions. Mrs. Ankrom read about Mary and a discussion was held by members.

Mrs. McAfee presided over the business meeting. It was reported 16 calls on ill persons had been made during the past month. Happy birthday was wished to Mrs. Donald Minor, Mrs. Robert Nothstine and Mrs. Nona Hankins, all having birthdays in July.

Mrs. McAfee reminded members of the bake sale to be held July 18th at the Circleville Sidewalk Sale.

To close the meeting Mrs. McAfee read an article on prayer from Response magazine. Refreshments were served by the hostesses.

The next meeting will be held Aug. 7th with Mrs. Vera Miller and Mrs. Bill Maxwell serving as co-hostess.

Personals

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Waple, 112 W. High St., have returned home from Huntington, W. Va., where they attended the funeral of Mrs. Waple's father, Otis Clay. Burial was at Highland Memorial Gardens, South Point, Ohio.

Ladies Auxiliary Discusses Projects

Ladies Auxiliary of Pickaway Twp. Fire Department met recently at the firehouse for its July meeting.

Mrs. Robert Bell led devotions and Mrs. Gene Kerns conducted the business meeting. She thanked members for their assistance in the recent successful fish fry.

Members voted to have portraits taken in September as a money making project. The exact date will be announced.

Announcement was made that election of officers will be held at the August meeting.

Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting by Mrs. Kerns.

Name Omitted

In the report of the wedding of Miss Cynthia DeLong and Mr. William Gooley, the name of Mrs. Michael Neff, sister of the bride, was omitted as an attendant.

The bride was attired in the gown worn by her sister, Mrs. Stephen Neff, at her wedding five years ago.

his company, but if he gives you an "either-or," take the "or."

DEAR ABBY: The problem briefly: Our daughter (a good student at an out-of-town college) recently volunteered the information that she is a lesbian. We were stunned since we had no inkling of this.

After discussions and correspondence on the subject, she flatly refuses any form of counseling and says that she is happy at the present time and sees no need to change.

What more can we as parents do to keep her from ruining her life? We love her.

NEW YORKER

DEAR NEW YORKER: Why do you assume that her sexual preference will necessarily "ruin" her life? If you love her, accept her as she is and let her know it.

DEAR ABBY: I am highly allergic to dogs. The odor of dogs makes me sick. I can even smell it on people's clothing.

My problem is that my son has married a dog lover, and they have a dog.

I explained to them what my problem was and even offered to buy my daughter-in-law a monkey or any other kind of pet she wanted if only she would get rid of the dog. So far, she still has the dog.

Of course I can't go over to their place, and when they come to see me, the odor of their dog is on them, and I can't tolerate it for long.

It seems to me that my daughter-in-law could live without a dog if she had to choose between having one and seeing me. What do you think?

HURT

DEAR HURT: Asking a dog lover to get rid of her dog is asking a lot. But I agree, people are more important than dogs. Or they should be.

CONFIDENTIAL TO K: So if your husband wants to read "dirty" books, don't embarrass him by telling him you "found" them-knowing that he hid them from you. How can what he reads hurt you?

Arts Council

Awards Grant

GAMBIER, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Arts Council has awarded a $500 grant to the Knox County Symphony Association to produce a special bicentennial program in the spring. The program will feature a composition for chorus, vocal soloists and orchestra by Paul Schwartz, professor of music at Kenyon College.

In 1790, the District of Columbia was established as the seat of the U.S. government.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A boost in agricultural production since 1970 has resulted in a leveling-off in the nation's hired farm-work force which had been edging lower in prior years, says the Agriculture Department.

About 2.7 million persons 14 years of age and older did at least some farm work for wages in 1974, up slightly from 1973, the department's Economic Research Service said Tuesday in an annual review.

During the three years 1972-1974 the farm labor force averaged about 2.7 million persons, compared with a 1969-71 average of about 2.5 million, the agency said.

"Thus, annual employment of farm wage workers appears to have become stable after the long-term downward trend of prior years," the report said. "At the same time there was a significantly greater annual production of agricultural commodities."

The report said that from 1973 to 1974 there was increased output of beef cattle, food grains, vegetables and tobacco, while declines were reported for feed grains, hay, forage, sugar crops, fruits and nuts, cotton and oilseed crops.

"Associated with these changes were increases in the number of farm wage workers in the Northeast and South, and decreases in the North Central and Western regions," the report said.

The number of migrant workers who follow crops as they are ready for harvest rose to 209,000 last year from 203,000 in 1973. Officials said it was the third consecutive year that the number of migrants increased. In 1971 those totalled 172,000 workers.

All 2.7 million persons who worked for some farm wages last year averaged $16.60 per day from actual farm work, up from $14.85 in 1973, the report showed.

They averaged 51 days of farm work last year, up from 49 in 1973. They averaged 138 days in work off farms in 1974, down from 144 in 1973. Counting their off-farm jobs, the 2.7 million workers averaged $2,737 last year, compared with $2,671 in 1973.

Workers employed in year-round farm jobs averaged $5,274 last year or $17.15 a day for 307 days. In 1973 the average was $4,696 for an average daily wage of $15.15 for 310 days.

Migrant workers last year worked an average of 78 days and earned an average of $21.60 a day against 102 days worked in 1973 and an average of $16.55 per day, the report showed.

HOT DOG!—There's more than one way to beat the heat, as this border collie owned by a Lawrence, Kan., man demonstrates. Of course, border collies and other four-legged summer sufferers must exercise patience, but when the sprinkler is turned on they're entitled to more exuberance.

Waynesville Bank Robbed

WAYNESVILLE, Ohio (AP) — State and local police and FBI agents are searching for three armed men who escaped with an undetermined amount of money from the Waynesville National Bank Tuesday morning, according to Warren County Sheriff's deputies.

Witnesses said the robbery occurred about 10 a.m. and lasted only about 45 seconds. They said three slightly built men wearing ski masks entered the bank, told customers and employees to "hit the deck" and took loose cash from drawers and the drive-in window.

The men then reportedly escaped, along with a fourth man, in two cars which had been parked two blocks away, deputies said. A third car, stolen from Centerville and used by the robbers, was recovered near the bank, the authorities said.

Warren County Sheriff Roy Wallace said cameras in the bank should yield film of the robbery.

Launch Survey Among Nurses

BLUFFTON, Ohio (AP) — A survey has been launched among 2,600 registered nurses in northwestern Ohio to determine their educational needs, says Donald L. Pannabecker, codirector of the study.

Pannabecker, an associate dean at Bluffton College, said the results of the project, funded by the Board of Regents, will be shared with members of the Northwest Ohio Consortium, which includes Bluffton, Ashland College, Bowling Green State University, Findlay College, Defiance College, Heidelberg College and Ohio Northern University.

Vernon; Mr. and Mrs. Andy Onewehr of Westerville; Mr. and Mrs. Ernie Gresh and daughter Denise of Columbus; Mrs. Mae Delay, and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Delay and Huck of Clark's Lake.

5 Buildings Landmarks

KENT, Ohio (AP)—Five buildings erected here in 1910, when Kent State University was known as Kent Normal School, have been entered in the National Register of Historic Places.

The National Park Service has entered Merrill Hall and Lowry Hall, the first two structures on the campus; Kent Hall; the administrative building, and Moulton Hall in the register.

The federal action was taken after the Ohio Historic Site Preservation Advisory Board endorsed the nomination by a Kent State history professor.

The five buildings now become eligible for federal funds for preservation and restoration.

Thomas H. Smith, director of the Ohio Historical Society and state historic preservation officer, said the nomination was made in connection with a state plan to identify and document historic places in Ohio.

Farm-Work Hiring Levels Off

WASHINGTON (AP) — A boost in agricultural production since 1970 has resulted in a leveling-off in the nation's hired farm-work force which had been edging lower in prior years, says the Agriculture Department.

About 2.7 million persons 14 years of age and older did at least some farm work for wages in 1974, up slightly from 1973, the department's Economic Research Service said Tuesday in an annual review.

During the three years 1972-1974 the farm labor force averaged about 2.74 million persons, compared with a 1969-71 average of about 2.5 million, the agency said.

"Thus, annual employment of farm wage workers appears to have become stable after the long-term downward trend of prior years," the report said. "At the same time there was a significantly greater annual production of agricultural commodities."

The report said that from 1973 to 1974 there was increased output of beef cattle, food grains, vegetables and tobacco, while declines were reported for feed grains, hay, forage, sugar crops, fruits and nuts, cotton and oilseed crops.

"Associated with these changes were increases in the number of farm wage workers in the Northeast and South, and decreases in the North Central and Western regions," the report said.

The number of migrant workers who follow crops as they are ready for harvest rose to 209,000 last year from 203,000 in 1973. Officials said it was the third consecutive year that the number of migrants increased. In 1971 those totaled 172,000 workers.

All 2.7 million persons who worked for some farm wages last year averaged $16.60 per day from actual farm work, up from $14.85 in 1973, the report showed.

They averaged 51 days of farm work last year, up from 49 in 1973. They averaged 138 days in work off farms in 1974, down from 144 in 1973. Counting their off-farm jobs, the 2.7 million workers averaged $2,737 last year, compared with $2,671 in 1973.

Workers employed in year-round farm jobs averaged $5,274 last year or $17.15 a day for 307 days. In 1973 the average was $4,696 for an average daily wage of $15.15 for 310 days.

Migrant workers last year worked an average of 78 days and earned an average of $21.60 a day against 102 days worked in 1973 and an average of $16.55 per day, the report showed.

Patches of heavy fog formed along the Ohio River again early this morning and the rest of the state experienced occasional patches of clouds, generally in the southwest corner.

At dawn, there was considerable cloudiness over Lake Erie and along the Pennsylvania border.

Temperatures at daybreak generally were in the 60s, with a few readings in the upper 50s.

The weather map continues to show little change. A stationary front stretches from New England to Georgia. A weak area of high pressure extends westward to the plains states.

Seek Sniper In Dayton

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Police say they believe the same man was responsible for shotgun sniper attacks Tuesday which left two men dead and a woman wounded.

Although the shootings occurred in different areas of the city, officers say there were a number of similarities.

Officers noted that all of the shotgun blasts were from a moving car, all of the victims were black, and witnesses said a lone gunman was involved in each incident.

Shot and killed along city streets were Larry Keith Romine, 27, and Eugene Hoard, 21. The coroner's office said both were shot in the back.

Glenda Gay, 20, was hit in the arm and shoulder as she and a friend walked along a city street. She was reported in fair condition at St. Elizabeth Medical Center.

Lawyers Under Fire

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio (AP) — Lawyers demanding jury trials in drunken driving case are responsible for the most serious problems in municipal courts, Ohio Chief Justice C. William O'Neill said Tuesday.

O'Neill, speaking to municipal court judges in the 2nd Ohio District Court of Appeals, said jury requests were made for the purpose of delay rather than securing a jury trial.

At an earlier meeting, O'Neill complimented common pleas court judges in the district for the progress they had made in bringing their dockets current. He said the number of criminal cases had been reduced as of March 31 from 137 to 27.

He said he hoped they could bring their personal injury dockets current within the next six months. There are 164 pending personal injury cases in the district, he said.

Patches of heavy fog formed along the Ohio River again early this morning and the rest of the state experienced occasional patches of clouds, generally in the southwest corner.

At dawn, there was considerable cloudiness over Lake Erie and along the Pennsylvania border.

Temperatures at daybreak generally were in the 60s, with a few readings in the upper 50s.

The weather map continues to show little change. A stationary front stretches from New England to Georgia. A weak area of high pressure extends westward to the plains states.

Seek Sniper In Dayton

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Police say they believe the same man was responsible for shotgun sniper attacks Tuesday which left two men dead and a woman wounded.

Although the shootings occurred in different areas of the city, officers say there were a number of similarities. Officers noted that all of the shotgun blasts were from a moving car, all of the victims were black, and witnesses said a lone gunman was involved in each incident.

Shot and killed along city streets were Larry Keith Romine, 27, and Eugene Hoard, 21. The coroner's office said both were shot in the back.

Glenda Gay, 20, was hit in the arm and shoulder as she and a friend walked along a city street. She was reported in fair condition at St. Elizabeth Medical Center.

Lawyers Under Fire

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio (AP) — Lawyers demanding jury trials in drunken driving case are responsible for the most serious problems in municipal courts, Ohio Chief Justice C. William O'Neill said Tuesday.

O'Neill, speaking to municipal court judges in the 2nd Ohio District Court of Appeals, said jury requests were made for the purpose of delay rather than securing a jury trial.

At an earlier meeting, O'Neill complimented common pleas court judges in the district for the progress they had made in bringing their dockets current. He said the number of criminal cases had been reduced as of March 31 from 137 to 27.

He said he hoped they could bring their personal injury dockets current within the next six months. There are 164 pending personal injury cases in the district, he said.

Volunteers For Youth Welcome New Members

Pickaway County Volunteers for Youth board members held their July meeting Tuesday, 4:30 p.m. at the YMCA. President Dieter Droste welcomed Diane Berger and Jack Ritchey to their first meeting as the board's newest members. Ms. Berger is filling the unexpired term of Marion Stiles, while Mr. Ritchey represents the Juvenile Court as their most recently employed probation officer.
Barbara Harrison presented a letter from a private foundation in response to VFY's request for financial assistance. The letter provided instructions for making formal application for a grant. The board voted to have Ms. Harrison submit an application as soon as possible.
Tom Fitzgerald reported on the progress of the Training Committee, which hopes to have a local pre-service training program available for prospective volunteers by this Fall.
Permission to submit questionnaires to all persons directly involved in the VFY program was granted by the board to Marsha Schneider. The forms were designed by The National Information Center on Volunteerism as a basic feedback system to provide continuous feedback for troubleshooting and improvement of volunteer programs. Ms. Schneider received copies of the forms at a June workshop sponsored by the Ohio Association of Volunteers in Criminal Justice.
A revised version of the volunteer contact report form was presented to Volunteer Coordinator Edith Downing by Ms. Schneider. The new forms will require more frequent, but less detailed reporting. Volunteers not wishing to use the written form may request phone contact.
The board unanimously approved one new volunteer who will attend the July training session sponsored by the Juvenile Probation Council in Columbus before being assigned to a probationer.
Board members were asked by President Droste to actively support the Kiwanis Club in their Peanut Sale, as proceeds from the sale will be benefiting the YMCA and VFY.

The Circleville Herald, Wednesday July 16, 1975 9
Legality Of FBI Break-Ins To Be Probed By Officials

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department is weighing the legality of burglaries conducted by the FBI to gain information considered necessary for national security.
Department spokesman Robert Havel said Monday that officials will review the circumstances of the break-ins. But he said any criminal charges might be barred by the statute of limitations, which prevents federal prosecutions for most offenses after five years.
Havel said it is Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi's policy and the department's policy that burglary is a legal tactic to gather foreign intelligence in limited cases.
FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley acknowledged at a news conference Monday that the FBI burglarized some unidentified foreign embassies in Washington and some other targets for nearly 30 years.
After 1966, break-ins were conducted only for "foreign counterintelligence, which we felt had a grave impact on the security of this nation," Kelley said.
But from World War II until 1966, burglaries were carried out both for foreign counterintelligence and national security purposes, he said.
Kelley declined to identify the specific targets, pending his report to the Senate select committee investigating the intelligence activities of the Central Intelligence Agency, the FBI and other intelligence agencies.
He declined to elaborate on the types of break-ins carried out under the umbrella of "national security."
Havel said department officials have not yet examined the circumstances of those break-ins to determine whether they fit department policy and the law.
Kelley declined to say whether the FBI break-ins were personally ordered by any president or attorney general, and he refused to say how many were carried out. He said there were "a few."

Asked whether there were break-ins at foreign embassies in Washington, Kelley replied, "Without naming or designating victims or institutions, I can only say there were a few, concerned with counterintelligence, foreign in nature, subsequent to 1966."
He said former FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover restricted the use of break-ins in 1966 because he felt "in the context of the times, it was not a viable procedure." Kelley said he has authorized none since becoming director two years ago.
